

June 28, 1867

Oliver Johnson,
Anti-Slavery Office,
5 Beekman Street,
New York City.

9

Boston, June 28, 1861.

Dear Johnson:

I missed replying to your letter by the bundle yesterday, and now write in haste to say, that I think you may confidently rely upon our furnishing for the Standard, several columns (as many, probably, as you will want) of the proceedings on the 4th at Framingham. We expect a speech from Phillips, of course, and will see that you get that, first of all.

We shall expect Mary Ann to see us on her way to New Hampshire.

I wish you could make a visit to this city, also, when you come to Providence.

It now looks very much as if the Standard must be discontinued before the expiration of the year. In that case, there ought to be no reduction of your salary; nor in any case, if it can be avoided.

Ever since I have known you,
you have been faithful and self-denying, and a stout and unselfish
"Christian Soldier."

I must write more fully about
~~other~~ affairs by another mail.

Yours, now and always,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

Oliver Johnson.

